

Job Title: Senior Research Associate, Protein Biochemistry

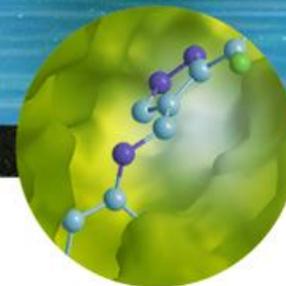

Job Type: Full-Time

The Opportunity:

X-Chem Pharmaceuticals is the industry leader in DNA-encoded library drug discovery platforms, and is seeking candidates for a full-time position of Senior Research Associate, Protein Biochemistry. The position is responsible for developing biochemical assays for characterizing protein targets, and assessing small molecules as an essential part of partnered and internal drug discovery campaigns.

Required Skills and Qualifications:

- MS preferred, with degree of study in biochemistry biology, or equivalent
- 3-5 years of industry experience working in small-molecule drug discovery teams
- Demonstrated experience in developing, troubleshooting, and performing biochemical assays for characterizing protein activity, assessing small molecule compound potency, and determining mechanism of action
- Experience working with various assay platforms (AlphaScreen/LISA, FRET, FP)
- Familiarity with protein characterization techniques (size exclusion chromatography, dynamic light scattering) is a plus
- Demonstrated track record of high quality and timely data generation
- Ability to think critically and creatively and to solve problems as part of a fast-pace, interdisciplinary, and team-oriented research team
- Excellent communication, organization, and time management skills
- Attention to detail, commitment to quality, and a team player mentality is a must
